NEO - Personality Inventory - Revised (NEO-PI-R)

(NEO = Neuroticism + Extraversion + Openness)

Paul T. Costa, Jr., PhD, Robert R. McCrae, PhD.
Revised NEO Personality Inventory (NEO PI-R) and NEO Five-Factor Inventory (NEO-FFI): Professional manual.
Odessa, FL: Psychological Assessment Resources, 1992

The NEO-PI-R 240-item questionnaire is designed to serve as a tool for obtaining a detailed assessment of respondent’s personality. More information can be found at:

Note:

Paul T. Costa and Robert R. McCrae worked to refine the three main factors (Neuroticism, Extraversion, and Openness) in the initial model of personality, and then went on to refine the fourth factor (Agreeableness) and fifth factor (Conscientiousness) in the early 1990s.

---------

The NEO-PI-R 240-item, standard, self-administered, questionnaire measure is a concise measure of the five major broad domains of personality, as well as the six traits or facets (subdomains) that define each domain. Taken together, the five domain scales and thirty facet scales of this instrument, facilitate a comprehensive, systematic and detailed assessment of normal adult personality, and provide a clear, concise and detailed personality description, summarizing an individual's emotional, interpersonal, experiential, attitudinal, and motivational styles. Each item is rated on a 5-point scale.
The following table lists the five factors (domains) and corresponding thirty facets (subdomains) of NEO-PI-R 240-item questionnaire:
